

Crow

the crow has plucked the eyes out of every single piece of poetry littering the highway like road kill

having gorged itself on metaphysics
it fossicks in the dirt for grubs to mark against the day it finds itself in full blue flight with no memory of how to come back down to earth